Strengthening a Church's Impact Through Education and Sport

The Vision and Mission

To transform communities through sport, education, and the local church, enabling the next generation to thrive physically, socially, and spiritually.

SRS International partners with local churches to create sustainable sports and educational environments that serve communities, build relationships, and open doors for discipleship and Gospel outreach.

Partnering with a local church

SRS International partners with a local church in Cobija, located in Bolivia's northern Pando region. The church has served its community for many years through discipleship, youth ministry, education, and community outreach.

More than twenty years ago, the church established a private school as part of its vision to serve children and families in the region. Today, the school employs 28 teachers and provides education for more than 400 students from kindergarten through secondary school. Through this ministry, the church invests in the academic, social, and spiritual development of the next generation. Over the years, SRS International has partnered with this church to strengthen both its educational and sports ministries, helping create spaces where children, young people, and families can learn, play, build relationships, and encounter the Gospel.

A New Sports Facility

One of the most significant projects supported by SRS International was the construction of a roof over the school's sports court. The facility is used daily for physical education classes, school assemblies, and student recreation, making it a central gathering place for more than 400 students.

Beyond the school day, the court serves the church's ministry, hosting youth meetings, church events, and community activities throughout the year.

Space for Camps and Sports

SRS International also partnered with the church to build a football field on the church's camp property.

The field supports camps that take place twice each year and bring together children, youth, and families for sports activities, discipleship, and community building. These camps provide opportunities to develop character, grow in faith, and build lasting relationships.

The football field is also used regularly by the church congregation. Every Sunday, church members gather to play football together, creating a natural environment for fellowship and outreach. Sport provides a powerful platform for building relationships and welcoming new people into the life of the church.

Lasting Impact

Through this partnership, SRS International is helping the local church to expand its impact in the community. The school, the covered sports court, the renovated sanitation facilities, and the football field are all practical resources that support the church's mission of serving children, strengthening families, and sharing the hope of Christ.

By investing in education, sports, and community infrastructure, this partnership is creating opportunities for the next generation while equipping the local church to serve its community for years to come.
